Material and technical support, which means providing the industry with modern buildings, transport, equipment and communication tools, work equipment, modern technologies and programs, is an important function of management in ИО. Therefore, in the decree of the President of the Republic of Uzbekistan "On measures to fundamentally increase the effectiveness of the internal affairs bodies, strengthen their responsibility in ensuring public order, the reliable protection of citizens' rights, freedoms and legal interests" (April 10, 2017) No. PF-5005 Further improvement of the material and technical support of ИО activities, creation of suitable conditions for effective work of employees, providing them with service accommodation was defined as one of the most important directions of IIO system reform.<sup>1</sup> In addition, In order to increase the efficiency of internal affairs bodies, the head of state paid special attention to the task of "further strengthening the supply of internal affairs bodies, especially prevention, criminal investigation, investigation, road patrol and patrol-post service units with modern equipment, information communication systems and special tools" it was emphasized that we should focus<sup>2</sup>. There are a number of factors that influence the effectiveness of IIO activities<sup>3</sup>, material and technical support takes an important place among them. A number of scientists who have conducted research in this regard have also emphasized the role of material and technical support in ensuring the efficiency of the system. In particular, M.M. Kurmanov and I.Kh. The Minnegulovs noted that the effective operation of the IIO, among other factors, largely depends on the state of financial and material and technical support of the system.<sup>4</sup>, another researcher E.E. Novichkova cites material and technical support as one of the main requirements for the proper organization of the professional activities of IIO employees.<sup>5</sup> Directly speaking about the material and technical support in the work of inspectors of internal affairs bodies on women's issues, a number of systematic and consistent measures have been implemented in the field as a result of the reforms carried out over the past years. In particular: firstly, specially equipped classrooms, education room, dormitory and other service rooms serving to improve the professional training of inspectors of internal affairs bodies on women's issues have been allocated. In addition, today the inspectors on women's issues of the internal affairs bodies of some regions of the Republic are provided with modern cars.<sup>6</sup>; In our opinion, in order to more effectively use the activities of inspectors of internal affairs bodies on women's issues, it is appropriate to increase their number and introduce them to other regions of the Republic. Complex organizational and preventive measures have been implemented in the republic for 6 months of this year to work with families and women, to find a systematic solution to their problems, to protect them from harassment and violence, to ensure their employment, and to provide them with material, social and other types of assistance. In our opinion, based on the results of the practice and the above analysis, it is necessary to establish a real-time system of entering information about the transition from the correctional program to the unified database of persons who have committed or are prone to commit violence; secondly, it is necessary to create an electronic evaluation KPI system in order to objectively evaluate the activities of senior inspectors on women's issues without the human factor and to improve their work efficiency. In our opinion, in order to prevent harassment and violence against women, on the basis of the principle of "Prosperous and safe neighborhood" in the electronic information system "E-social prevention" aimed at creating a safe environment in the republic's neighborhoods, "E- It is appropriate to establish measures for the creation of a new correction program system. In the course of the research, when asked about the level of material and technical support of inspectors of internal affairs bodies for women's issues, 42.1% of the participants said that conditions were created at the required level for their effective activity, 35.4% said that the material and technical support was at an average level, 23.5 % stated that it is not provided at the level of material and technical requirements of the time.

It should be noted that the conducted research and analysis of statistical data show that, along with the above achievements, there are also certain problems and shortcomings in the material and technical support of inspectors of internal affairs bodies for women's issues. In particular:

1. Innovative technologies and special software systems are not sufficiently implemented in the work of inspectors of internal affairs bodies on women's issues. However, as the American researcher Kevin Strom rightly points out, the efficiency of the Police and the high professional level of its employees are related to the wider introduction of modern technologies.<sup>7</sup> In our opinion, in order to increase the efficiency of the work of inspectors of internal affairs bodies on women's issues, it is appropriate to widely implement advanced innovative technologies and special software systems in the field. This was approved by 84.3% of those asked during the research. In the course of the research, when the inspectors of the internal affairs bodies on women's issues were asked whether or not they encountered persons who were injured or in need of first aid during their work, and how they acted in this situation, 67.5% of the participants said that they encountered such a situation and, in turn, the first stated that he provided medical assistance. In our opinion, in this regard, we think it is beneficial to organize separate training courses and provide additional knowledge to inspectors of internal affairs bodies on women's issues.
