

THE WORDS RELATED TO UZBEK FAMILIES

Tojinorova Nafisa

2st course student of Denau Entrepreneurship and Pedagogy Institute

Abstract. In this article it has been given information about the words which are related to family. Uzbek families' respect to family members as well as politeness can be the best example among the nations. So these words and their common types are compared with different nations.

Key words: family, family bond, marriage, meal time, familial relationship, children, respect, adult.

In Uzbek families, there are special attitudes between family members. In these attitudes, the old is more important than other people. Younger people have to respect the elders, and they must do what the elders say, which is a sign of manners. In Uzbekistan, parents have to look after their kids until they are 18, but most people don't care about that, and they go on caring for them after their 18 years. If we come to other nations, such as Russia, England, or Spain, after becoming adults, their children live separately from their parents. Besides, in Uzbek families, youngsters stay with their parents after marrying. The others may live separately in their own homes. During breakfast, dinner, or other eating times, the eldest person in the family begins to eat. If others begin to eat something, it will be impoliteness. Before marriage, every girl and boy consult with their family members about this. But in other foreign countries, every adult chooses his husband or wife without asking advice from his parents. Marriage is a really essential thing in our culture, so it may take a long time for people. Here are some words related to family events and the daily life. During mealtime, they use the word "Help yourself", and first of all, the bread was broken around the table. Although talking to family members is interesting, it is impolite to talk a lot, so it will be done in moderation. Another important thing is family bonding. A family bond is a connection that diverse people share, whether by blood relation, marriage, or adaptation. This often involves immediate relatives, such as parents and siblings, or slightly more distant relatives, such as grandparents, aunts, uncles, and cousins. A person's experience with family ties might be vastly different from another's. To achieve good communication, you must explicitly identify the nature of the familial relationship you are speaking or writing about. When seeking the ideal word to describe different forms of family ties, consider using one of these powerful descriptive terms.

Here is given some common examples to the words which describe family relationships in different nations:

-adoring, loving, and respecting someone deeply. "He adored his mother."

-affectionate—a -readily to feel or show fondness or tenderness. "his affectionate nature"

-boisterous, noisy, energetic, and cheerful. "a group of boisterous lads"

-brotherly: characteristic of or appropriate for a brother or brothers; fraternal. "He and I had such a brotherly bond."

-close-knit, bound together by strong relationships and common interests. "a close-knit community"

-cohesive: characterized by or causing cohesion. "Each parish was formerly a cohesive unit."

-devoted; very loving or loyal. "He was a devoted husband."

-doting—extremely and uncritically fond of someone; adoring. "She was spoiled outrageously by her doting father."

-dysfunctional—unable to deal adequately with normal social relations.

-estranged (of a wife or husband) no longer living with their spouse. "His estranged wife"

-fatherly: relating to, resembling, or characteristic of a father, especially in being protective and affectionate. "He gave me such a kind and fatherly look."

-loving—feeling or showing love or great care. "a loving father"

-She held both her arms wide in a gesture of motherly love."

-motherly: of, like, or characteristic of a mother, especially in being kind, protective, and loving.

-sentimental: pertaining to or inspired by sentiments of love, grief, or longing.

"She felt a sentimental attachment to the place creep over her."

-sisterly: fitting or typical of a sister or sisters. "sisterly affection"

-delicate, displaying kindness, delicacy, and fondness. "He was being so kind and tender."

-warm: enthusiasm, affection, or kindness. "She smiled with real warmth."

In Uzbekistan, family plays the crucial role and government pays more attention to the family. Marriage is an essential part of Uzbek culture, and it may take a long time for people to find a suitable partner. Family bonding can be described using powerful descriptive terms like "adoring," "affectionate," "boisterous," "brotherly," "close-knit," "cohesive," "devoted," "doting," "dysfunctional," "estranged," "fatherly," "loving," and "motherly."

REFERENCES

1. Dzibel G.V. The system of the terms of kindred relations: linguistic context in ethnographic relations // The Algebra of kindred relationship. St. Petersburg, 1998. – P.89-134.

2. Zikova I.V. The specifics of gender indexing of the English idioms// Gender: language, culture, communication. – Moscow: MSLU, 2001. –P.150-159.

3. Nasrullaeva N.Z. The formation of gender concepts in the English and Uzbek phraseological world vision. Abstract of doctoral dissertation. – Tashkent, 2018. – 70 p.

4. A Supplement to the Oxford English Dictionary / Ed. by R.W. Burchfield. – Vol.4. – Oxford: Clarendon press, 1996. – 1410 p.